← SwiftKey Beta
Details

SwiftKey has a new name - we're now Microsoft SwiftKey Keyboard. Don't worry, it's still the same keyboard you know and love

We've added support for Emoji 12.0 which introduces an assortment of new designs - some examples include: flamingo, otter, guide dog, sloth, white heart, mixed skin tones when holding hands, and a gender inclusive couple. You'll be able to access the new emoji upon opening your SwiftKey emoji panel. Note: to see them you need a device with Android 10 (or above).

Ashton had 1,230,000+ and CNN had 980,000+ where the match actually bought malaria nets for children in Africa. CNN lost, so they bombed his house with Ding-Dongs. Recently, I was in Atlanta presenting to Jerry McGuire's clients (Leigh Steinberg), and there were more Super Bowl rings in the room than I had ever seen before. His billboard cost him $7,500 and he generated 300 new customers. People follow you, people trust you. The ROI or Cost Of Customer Acquisition was $15,000 divided by 200 or $75 per new customer. Everyone keeps asking me about Twitter metrics; how can you make money using Twitter. I learned that even Demi was Ding Donging with the rest of them. Then of course, that led to the Ding-Dong Ditch where Ashton Kutcher "punked" Ted Turner the owner of CNN. People who respect you receive your text messages or "follow" you. That's all there is to it. On Twitter, you voluntarily select to receive text messages from people that you respect so you "follow" them. I made the same statement and this crowd went dead. That's the power of social networks. This discount would range from $9 on one bottle of wine to $49 on a case of wine. I'd answer their questions and people would Tweet my answers back out to the Twittersphere. Back to discussing Twitter though. The direct mail piece cost him $15,000 to produce and mail. That's the power of Twitter. A phenomenon I recognized for the first time, was we had as many questions from the conference audience on the screen as we had from people from around the world, not at the conference. He got 200 new customers for $15,000 using direct mail. He wanted to specifically compare conventional marketing that we are all comfortable with, with this new Tweet stuff. Twitter is text messaging on steroids. He started by creating three different codes that when entered on his wine Web site would give the customer free shipping on their next wine order. What was the ROI here: $0 divided by 1,800 customers or infinity. And recently, he signed a $1M contract to write a series of ten books on social media marketing. This way you're instantly informed. They'll listen to you when you have something to say. He started using Twitter and creating short, self produced videos about wine and within 36 months built his company to $50M. Click here for your free Fast Company The Social Media Bible Ten Commandment Ball. He then created a direct mail piece, which offered one of the codes. At my most recent conference, we had a Twitter Roll on a separate screen at the front stage. Here's one case study that makes it easy to see the ROI. We've all been there; $15,000 is a reasonable cost for a decent direct mail campaign. Here are the results. It was a laptop connected to the Internet that simply received any text messages sent via Twitter that mentioned the conference. He did a billboard on one of the local highways with its own code and then he sent out a text message (a Tweet) on Twitter with the third code. If you're not familiar with the Ding-Dong Ditch; you ring someone's doorbell, then when answered, you begin throwing Ding-Dongs, literally. You've seen it on The View, you've watched it creep into night time dramas, you've heard it in the news, you've seen Larry King take on Ashton Kutcher with their one million follower challenge. He is also an innovator and professional speaker with over 20 years of experience in entrepreneurship, marketing, sales, strategic partnering, speaking, training, writing, and e-commerce. That's why this stuff is so important. Isn't this a great application of social media; helping kids? This marketing was 100% free. He is the founder of eight successful companies, including Paper Models, Inc. Gary has produced nearly 700 videos about wine. Anytime you get an inspiration or something intelligent to say, send out a Tweet. His one free text message, a Tweet using Twitter, brought in 1,800 new customers. That way anytime someone in the audience had something to say about what was being presented or any questions, I could address them immediately in real-time. Twitter is one application of a broader category called microblogging. This conventional marketing technique acquired Gary 200 new customers. His ROI or CCA here was $7,500 divided by 300 customers or $25 per new customer. He's a Jersey boy. Ashton Kutcher got over one million followers and beat Larry King / CNN. Whether it's Twitter or any other social network, it takes time to build your trusted network, but when you do, they're there for you. He took over his dad's wine distributorship, which had annual revenues at about $5M. When others have something intelligent to share (and sometimes not so intelligent) they Tweet it and you see it. Steroids...not a good thing; the marketing moral is, know your audience. If you haven't already seen Gary Vaynerchuk, you have to go and look at some of his videos. Just print, cut, glue, and be inspired! That's the power of this genre.
